

MOVE FOR NEW SCHOOL

Voters of Consolidated District in Buena Vista Authorize Loan and Select Site.

The proposition of establishing a consolidated school in the town of Buena Vista took another stride toward realization Monday evening, when about 175 voters, both men and women, met at Union hall, authorized the borrowing of $9,000 and decided upon the site for the new institution.

After a motion to adjourn until the annual school meeting in July had been voted down, 100 to 71, the following question was presented: "Shall school district No. 1 of the town of Buena Vista, Portage county, borrow $9,000 from the trust funds of the state of Wisconsin for the purpose of building a new school building?" This was carried by a vote of 96 to 74. The district board was next authorized to purchase, through condemnation proceedings if necessary, four acres of land adjoining that on which Union hall is located, as the site of the new school. This location is the most convenient available considering highway facilities, and it is the plan to add to it as deemed necessary in the future.

The new district, which is the first under the consolidation plan in Portage county, is composed of old districts Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. They were joined by action of the town board on October 15, and on October 25th officers were elected as follows: L. A. Precourt, clerk; Andrew Yokers Sr., treasurer, and S. Whittaker, director.

Although the movement to consolidate the four districts was attended by a spirited contest, it is believed that now that the voters of the district have, through a majority vote, taken the stand above outlined, the spirit of cooperation will again be in evidence. Messrs. Precourt, Yokers and Whittaker are among the best citizens of Buena Vista and can be relied upon to discharge their duties in a capable and efficient manner.

The money from the state trust fund will be available about March 1, 1916, and payable at the rate of $1,000 per year, with 4 per cent interest. In addition, the district is entitled to $3,000 aid from the state fund for consolidated schools. The school building will be modern in every respect, built to accommodate 200 students, and will house both graded and high school sections. The last named department will be built up as necessary until a regular four year course is established.

Monday's meeting was presided over by John Dineen.

RETURN TO MILWAUKEE.
Mr. and Mrs. L. Thelen and daughter

ter left for Milwaukee today to again take up their residence there. About four years ago Mr. Thelen bought what is known as the Butterfield farm located in the southeast corner of the city, and the family made their home there ever since. Desiring to again become residents of a larger city, they are returning to their former home, Milwaukee, where they have several grown up daughters and a son living. They are still owners of the farm here but expect to dispose of it.

A COMMUNITY MEETING

Interesting Program Carried Out At State Graded School in Nelsonville.

An interesting program was carried out last Friday evening at Nelsonville, in which Stevens Point people took an active part. The entertainment was along educational lines and took place in the graded school of which Miss Cora Doxrud, a Stevens Point Normal school graduate, is principal. Miss Anna Gavins, a class of '15, is also a teacher in the school. Prof. A. J. Herrick of this city delivered an able address on "Rural Ideals."

The program was well attended about 250 people being present, which shows an increasing interest on the part of the people in this section of the country along this phase of work. A fine exhibit of farm products was on display and was judged by Prof. Herriek and Mr. Peterson, the latter a graduate of the short course at Madison. The proceeds from a candy and sandwich sale and fish pond netted $12.90. This money will be used to purchase necessities for the school room.

AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

George M. Norton, Life-long Resident of Plover, Dead at Age of Forty-seven.

George M. Norton, a life-long resident and well known farmer of the town of Plover, died at his home at McDill at 11:45 o'clock Tuesday night following an illness of three ears or more, which had its inception in a severe attack of pneumonia.

December 24. He is survived by his widow and five children, the youngest of whom is one year of age, his father Harvey Norton of Plover, two sisters Mrs. Elmer Shannon of McDill and Mrs. Wilma Thorpe of Waukegan, Ill. and a brother, Ed. Norton of McDill.

The funeral will be held from the residence at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. James Blake officiating. Interment in the McDill cemetery.

A COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS.

Stevens Point had a community Christmas tree a couple of years ago. How about a community Christmas?

Instead of sending our gift money out of town, without leaving even a loop-hole for it to come back, why not do ALL our buying at home? A dollar at home is worth a mint of gold a hundred miles away, so far as home interests are concerned.

What does it profit you, Mr. Buyer, if, when you purchase goods of a mail order house, blindfolded as it were, it costs you double what you think you save, in the prosperity of your home community? You and every other good citizen are vitally interested in the upbuilding of your home; the affairs of your community are your affairs, and you would strenuously oppose anything that might retard its growth or effect its welfare.

Maybe you have not stopped to think what makes for the prosperity of your home. It is not wholly yourself, nor yet the land you own; it is the value of the community as a whole, its schools, its factories, its stores, big and little; in fact it's the composite whole and not the individual. As the community is built up, so does your property and the property of everyone else increase in value, there is more work and better wages and the whole fabric of the locality is improved.

And your retail merchant is a fixture in your community. He pays his share of the taxes, he helps in upbuilding the town, and does, in practically every instance, all that he can for its welfare and support.

The season for Christmas shopping is near at hand and it is the logical time to begin a BUY AT HOME movement. The Gazette will contain hundreds of suggestions from home merchants to help you in making your selections of gifts, and there's nothing within reason that you can't buy right here at home, where you can see what you are getting before it's too late. You will save money, too, as well as time and worry, and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done your duty toward your home community.

Yes, let's make this a real community Christmas; let's demonstrate by our acts that we are good citizens and loyal to our own people. And one of these night's let's make a big bon-fire of the mail order catalogs while we all band together for a bigger and better Stevens Point and Portage county.

MEET AT EAU CLAIRE.

Thirteenth Annual Older Boys' Conference of Wisconsin to be Held This Month.

The Thirteenth Annual Older Boys' Conference will be held under the auspices of the State Y. M. C. A. and Wisconsin Sunday School Association at Eau Claire, Nov. 26, 27 and 28. The object of the conference is to bring together the boys who are leaders and workers in the religious organizations in their community. At the conference experts will speak on methods and efficiency of religious work for boys.

Boys from 15 to 20 years, and workers with boys of all denominations are eligible and urged to attend this convention. The program abounds in addresses, banquets, music and various entertainments.

In this instance Eau Claire will sustain her reputation for hospitality in entertaining visitors. Provision has been made to furnish lodging and meals free, including a mammoth banquet in the largest auditorium in the city. A full orchestra will play during the banquet. John Alexander of Chicago is the principal speaker. The High School girls will serve. More than 600 boys will attend and a rousing time is expected.

The expense of attending this conference is the railroad fare and 75 cents registration fee. It is recommended that delegates arrive early on Friday that they may get acquainted, see the city, have some recreation and be ready to go to the Conference Headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building, where the delegation meets the entertainment committee, and secure places of entertainment, badges, souvenir programs, etc.

For registration cards or information write G. W. Hovey, Y. M. C. A. Eau Claire, Wis.

WEBBED-FEET DON'T GO.

Because of a thin membranous filament connect his toes made him web-footed, Frank Leque, Holtville, L. I., thought he would make a splendid recruit for that semi-aquatic organization, the United States Marine Corps, and was keenly disappointed when Sergeant George B. McGee, in charge of the Syracuse, N. Y., recruiting station, rejected him for that very reason. Now Leque believes that if Uncle Sam can't use a man-duck, he still has a mission in life, and is contemplating applying for a position as traffic "cop" in the city if unfixed leaks—Venice.

Sergeant McGee of the Marines was loath to reject Leque for what he was pleased to term "duckitis," and he had momentary visions of the Long Island recruit being trained actually to walk on water and so, in time, to hurdle hot-foot over hissing combers from one vessel to another to deliver his "Don't give up the ship, boys" messages from the admiral.

But perfect feet are absolutely essential to Marines, and since the corps is usually filled up to maximum strength with exceptionally well-developed men, the web-footed one was told that he wouldn't do. Now nothing remains for him to do except to join the Venetian traffic squad, or, as another rejected applicant told him, "acquire water on the knee and a floating kidney with your other accomplishments and you could enter the Patagonian Navy."

SHORT OVER $14,000.

A total shortage of $14,008.78 in the accounts of A. D. Sutton, former city treasurer of Rhinelander and at one time a resident of Stevens Point, was reported to the common council of that city last Wednesday evening by auditors who had been checking up for several months. Sutton was first elected treasurer in 1894 and served in that capacity up to the present year. His misappropriations began in a small way shortly after he assumed the office, but they gradually increased in size; in one month in 1912 about $5,000 was taken. A. W. Brown, W. E. Brown and O. E. Brown, all former residents of this city, were bondsmen for Sutton from 1895 to 1899, when his shortage totaled $829.30, while from 1903 to 1905 a corporate surety bond protected the city in the sum of $10,934.08. Of the amount missing, $5,500 has been paid back since the beginning of the audit. In their report to the council the auditors blamed lax business methods of previous executive bodies for the shortage.

RECORD PRICE FOR CORN.

A bushel of kiln dried seed corn sold for the record price of $31.48 at Wausau last week. The corn, which was of the Wisconsin No. 12 variety, was raised on the Marathon county asylum farm and was disposed of by auction, twelve ears at a time, among county board members. Chairman J. D. Christie acting as auctioneer. The bidding was spirited and as high as $3.79 was received for a dozen, while the lowest was $2.00.

RHINELANDER LID ON.

The Sunday closing lid is on at Rhinelander. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of that city secured upwards of 600 names to petitions demanding a removal of screens in bar-rooms, as well as Sunday closing, and Mayor Anderle, on being presented with the petitions, issued an order that the ordinance be enforced. The reported agitation for a broader application of the Sunday closing laws, brought out a statement from the mayor in which he said he would not put his official ban on the movies.

A man refused a bundle of papers at this office the other day because there were some colored supplements contained therein. He said the funny pictures tickled his wife's feet.

Local Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Dent of Almond drove in and spent part of last Friday in the city.

Mrs. Allen Behrendt visited at the home of her aunt, Mrs. H. A. Wilson, at Amherst last Friday.

Mrs. W. E. Langenberg and Mrs. A. F. Behrendt left last Friday for Milwaukee to spend a few days at the home of the former's daughter, Mrs. T. E. Dever.

Rev. J. E. Meagher, pastor of the Catholic churches at Lanark and Amherst, spent a few days last week at Winneconne, assisting Rev. Luby at forty hours' devotion services.

Miss Agnes Meagher returned to her home at Lanark, last Thursday afternoon, after spending a few days in the city visiting her sister, Miss Gertrude, a student at the Normal.

Miss Florence Kollock and grandmother, Mrs. T. Munson, who had been spending a few days in the city, returned to Bancroft Saturday. Miss Kollock's nephew, Perry Somers, who is attending school here, returned with them to spend the day.

Mrs. Charles Cornwell, who had been a patient at St. Michael's hospital in this city for a little over two weeks, having submitted to an operation, returned to her home in Bancroft last Saturday. Her husband came up Friday and accompanied her home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nolan, who had been spending the week in the city, guests at the homes of Peter Schliesmann and Geo. W. Allen, and among friends in the rural districts, departed Saturday for their home in Savanna, Ill. Mrs. Nolan is a niece of Peter Schliesmann and this was their first meeting in thirty-five years.

One of the most successful dancing parties ever given by the Knights of Columbus, took place at their hall last Friday evening. An attendance of about eighty couples, musical by Weber's orchestra and a general spirit of sociability combined to make the evening an exceptionally pleasant one. Dancing continued until 2 o'clock and luncheon was served in the hall.

Consumption in the House.

The following query and answer will doubtless be of interest and value in hundreds of Wisconsin homes.

"We have a tubercular patient under treatment in our home, where, also, four young men are taking their meals. Please recommend to me the best course to pursue; should we let the boarders go, or can satisfactory safeguards be furnished them under such conditions? We desire to be fair to everyone concerned."

Your problem is to be considered from two angles, 1st—what is best for the patient; and 2nd—what is best for the boarders.

Personally, I am convinced that every patient suffering from tuberculosis should, if at all possible (and it is usually possible for an individual patient), be treated in a tuberculosis sanatorium. The chances for recovery are seldom so good under any other conditions. If, therefore, arrangements can be made to have the patient enter a sanatorium, you will do best for the patient, for the boarders, and for your own family.

Concerning the second and alternative phase of the problem, it is not at all impossible for well people to live in fairly close contact with consumptives without serious danger to their health. It is being done every day in the sanatoria. In your problem of safeguarding the boarders, the greatest demand is for the patient to be furnished with separate dishes which should be washed and handled separately from those used by the family and boarders. A practical suggestion for private families is offered by sanatoria which use dishes of different pattern for patients than that of dishes used for those not suffering from the disease. This makes accidental mixing almost impossible.

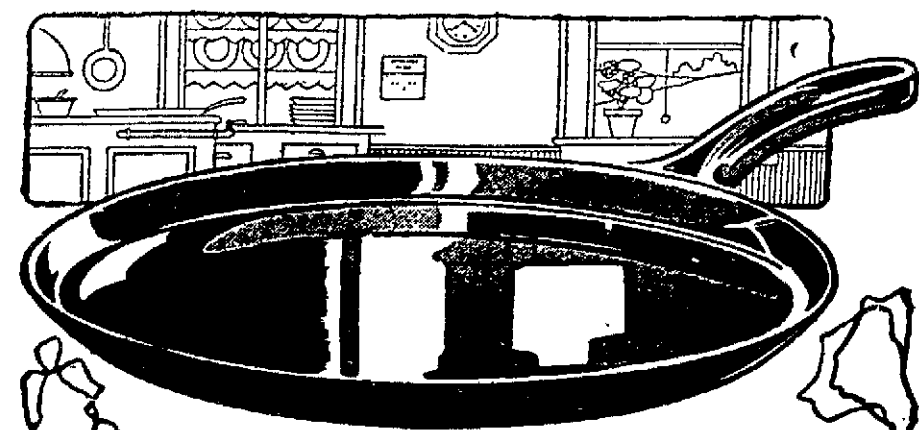

Preventing tuberculosis requires more intelligent vigilance than profound knowledge because there is but one source of danger in pulmonary consumption and that is in the discharges from the patient's lungs. But there are many possible ways in which a person who is in close contact with a patient can get the germs of the disease in his system during a twenty-four hour day. Here are a few of the most important warnings:

Don't shake hands with a consumptive.

Don't kiss a consumptive.

Don't drink from his glass.

Don't handle bedding, papers, etc., without thoroughly washing hands afterwards and possibly rinsing them in alcohol.

WILL BUILD SANATORIUM.

The board of supervisors of Marathon county, in session last week, voted to appropriate $35,000 for the purchase of a site and the erection of necessary buildings for use as a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients.

While the members were voting, 44 to 19, to establish the sanatorium, a moving picture man was filming the proceedings for use as a part of the big play, "The Power of a Penny," soon to be produced by the Wisconsin Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

FROM EMPIRE STATE.

In writing to renew his subscription to The Gazette, W. E. Clark, a former prominent resident of the town of Stockton, but who has been living near Darien, N. Y., for the past couple of years, said, in part: "We are always glad to receive the paper, although each issue brings news of the death of those whom we used to meet only a short time ago. For this time of the year the weather is fine. It has not been cold enough to kill the porch plants and the grass is as green as in June. Prices for beans are good, but the yield and quality poor as a rule. The wet fall was bad for them. Potatoes right here are a complete failure—not enough for home use. A late spring freeze killed all the apples, peaches, plums, prunes, grapes and quinces. Farther north near the lake they did not bring enough to pay for the picking."

REASONS FOR THANKFULNESS.

For the manifold blessings that Almighty God has showered upon us during the past year; for prosperous industries and fertile fields; for contented homes and peaceful marts; for the growing recognition that whatever is of solid benefit to a single division of our people must in time be of benefit to the people as a whole; for the extension of education and the fostering of the arts and sciences; for our preservation from flood and famine, plague and drought—for these tokens of the benignant and beneficent care of a watchful Providence it is becoming that the people should gather to offer thanks to Almighty God.

While in sorrow and compassion we view the misery and devastation which a world war has brought to our fellow beings across the ocean, while we look aghast at fields dyed with the blood of brave men and wet with the tears of women and little children, at homes destroyed, at commerce paralyzed, at proud cities leveled to the dust and progress giving way to desolation, our minds must turn in gratitude to Him who has kept our nation whole and unharmed.

YOUNG BOY MISSING.

An appeal has been sent out for assistance in locating Charles Ausland, Jr., a fourteen year old boy who disappeared from his home in Strong's Prairie, Adams county, last April 4, since which time he has not been heard from. The boy is about five feet, four inches in height, weighs about 130 pounds, has dark hair, blue eyes and a small scar on his upper lip. He has a heavy voice and walks slightly stooped. Any information as to his whereabouts will be gratefully received by Charles Ausland, Sr., of Strong's Prairie.

The cost of the minor items of equipment needed on a farm is much greater than the average person is wont to think. It has been found by inventories taken on a number of farms that the tools and implements actually needed on the average farm, from a wheelbarrow down to a husking peg, cost nearly $200.

MARKETING THE TUBERS

Bulletin Issued by University Gives Interesting Facts About Wisconsin Potato Industry.

"The Marketing of Wisconsin Potatoes," is the title of Bulletin 256 of the agricultural experiment station of the University of Wisconsin. The bulletin, which is by H. C. Taylor, discusses in detail the methods pursued in handling potatoes from the producer to the consumer and is illustrated with pictures, maps and charts.

Following are a few extracts from the pamphlet:

According to the last census, Wisconsin produced 31,968,195 bushels of potatoes in 1909. The greatest concentration of potato production is found in the central part of the state. Portage, Waupaca, and Waushara are our principal potato-producing counties, growing nearly one quarter of the supply of the state. Sauk County ranks next in importance. Adams, Juneau, and Marquette counties are also known commercially in the potato business. These seven counties produce about a third of the potato crop of the state and constitute the largest center from which potatoes are shipped outside of the state.

While some potatoes are stored in the warehouses of the dealers in the local towns and a few are shipped for storage in the city where they are consumed the storage function is performed, in a large measure, by the farmers. The dealers' warehouses in the potato district of Central Wisconsin would, if filled, hold about one-third of the potatoes grown in that region. In fact, the warehouses seem to be used more as reservoirs to equalize the irregular receipts of potatoes from the farmers in order to have a continuous supply for shipment. It is believed that much more than two-thirds of the potatoes are stored for a longer or shorter period on the farm.

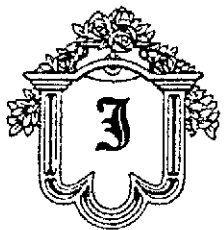

There are several reasons why the farmers should do the storing. The potatoes are dug in a short time in the fall and if it were necessary to get cars enough to ship twenty million bushels in a month, the cost to the transportation companies would be greatly increased. The local dealers would be swamped for a short time and then have no potatoes to handle for eleven months. The farmer who is very far from the station finds it more practical to devote all his time to digging potatoes during potato harvest and then haul them to town when other work is not so pressing. Farm storage means that the farmer is rendering an additional service, which he can render more cheaply than the city capitalist.

While economy of energy on the farm at digging-time, economy in the use of transportation facilities, and economy in storage facilities point toward the desirability of farm storage of potatoes, the real test on which the farmer should base his decision is that of relative profitability. Whether it will pay better to sell from the field or to store the potatoes is a matter of costs and prices. Obviously, it costs the farmer who is distant from the railway station more to market directly than to store because of the high value of man and horse labor at digging-time and their low value during the winter months. The other important factor is the price which can be secured at different times of the year. If the price is enough higher at digging-time, he may market at once with profit.

To improve the marketing situation the farmer can use his efforts to keep the cost down to a minimum, on the farm, in transportation from farm to local market, and through the local warehouse. The farmer can reduce the costs of railway transportation and the cost of handling at the central markets by sending sound potatoes sorted as to size and free from dirt. He can increase the price for which the product can be sold and hence the price which he will receive by producing an excellent standard variety. The better the quality, the wider the market for Wisconsin potatoes and the higher and more certain the price. The better the potatoes which are delivered at a given loading station, the higher will be the average price at that station. This accounts in part at least for differences in price on a given day at different loading stations. Unfortunately it has not seemed practical for a given buyer to pay different prices to different farmers corresponding to the difference in quality of their potatoes. The big potato men profess a desire to do so but claim the farmers object to selling on grade. Progress is being made in this matter, however. Graders have been quite generally adopted in the last few years, which remove the dirt and the small potatoes which will pass through a one and five-eighth inch screen. This makes

A Presidential Proclamation

BY WOODROW WILSON

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation.

Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate the last Thursday of November next as a day of thanksgiving and prayer and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

Rheumatism and Allied Pains—They Must Go!

The congestion of the blood in its flow causes pain. Sloan's Liniment penetrates to the congestion and starts the blood to flow freely. The body's warmth is renewed; the pain is gone. The "man or woman who has rheumatism, neuralgia or other pain and fails to keep Sloan's Liniment in their home is like a drowning man refusing a rope." Why suffer? Get a bottle of Sloan's. 25c and 50c. $1.00 bottle holds six times as much as 25c size.

But little rock phosphate or ground limestone comes under the provisions of the Wisconsin fertilizer law. Most of these materials are sold for less than $10 a ton.

Take Care of That Itching!—All Itching Borders on Eczema.

Do you regard that itching as a serious thing? It is! Unless you begin to fight it with Dr. Hobson's Eczema Ointment, the disease is likely to cling to you for months and years. Scores of grateful users say: "Why did we waste those months and years in agony when so tested a remedy was on the market?" This ointment is no experiment; it is absolutely healing in power. Do not allow it to become serious. Buy a box today to fight the beginnings of eczema. 50c a box.

The cost of keeping a calf during its first four weeks is nearly double that of any other four-week period of its life.

About 32,000 barrels of cranberries have been harvested in Wisconsin this year. In all there are approximately 2,000 acres of cultivated cranberry bogs in the state, lying chiefly within three main districts in Green Lake, Wood and Juneau counties.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes.

In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has stood the test and been approved for more than forty years. Obtainable everywhere.

The Cranmoor district will place on the market this year about 29,000 barrels of the state's total of 32,000 barrels of cranberries. The Agricultural Experiment Station maintains an experimental bog in this district and is helping growers by propagating new varieties of plants and by studying methods of insect and disease control.

CLOVER SEED BRINGS MONEY.

D. W. Sawyer, chairman of Belmont, brings the information that several farmers in his township have made nice little fortunes this season in raising clover seed. On the Prochnow farm they harvested about fifty tons of hay early in the year, valued at about $8.00 per ton, and off the same 26 acres of ground raised clover from which seed to the value of $977 was sold. Another land owner in that immediate neighborhood did equally well.

VISITORS FROM AMHERST.

Among the attentive listeners at last Wednesday evening's talk by E. L. Luther at the court house, were E. P. Tobie of Amherst Junction and L. A. Pomeroy of Amherst. Mr. Tobie is a raiser of thoroughbred cattle, in which line he has made a pronounced success, while Mr. Pomeroy is equally interested in farming, although from another angle. ### HAD LUCK WITH HIM.

What proved to be an extremely lucky accident occurred in the Normal building on Friday afternoon of last week, when William Ruff, age 14, lost his balance while hanging over a railing on the second floor, and fell to the basement below, a distance of about 20 feet. He probably saved himself from serious injury by grasping the railing of the basement stairs as he fell. William was considerably shaken up by his fall, his arms and side bruised, but other than that appears to be none the worse for the accident. It was at first feared that bones had been broken and that he was internally injured, but he now is able to be around again and is back to school.

Pittsville Record: A dance in the street on the new pavement, is the way Stevens Point proposes celebrating the finishing of Normal avenue. We cannot think of anything more patriotically democratic, and if the proposal is carried out, the mayor, the hod carrier, the butcher, the baker, etc., etc., will be found tripping the light fantastic in unison of heart and purpose.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—At a vestry meeting of Market Square church, Rev. Smith Boyd, pastor, announced to a discussion about the sale of the church tenements to Edward E. Allison, local traction king, and when asked for his opinion of the church by Rev. Smith Boyd, he apparently a lucrative business enterprise.

CHAPTER II.—Allison takes Gail riding in his motor car. When he suggests he be invited to rest on the laurels of his achievements, she asks the disturbing question: "Why?"

CHAPTER III.—Gail, returning to her home, finds cold disapproval in the eyes of Rev. Smith Boyd, who is calling there.

CHAPTER IV.—At a boisterous party Gail finds the world uncomfortably full of men, and Allison tells Jim Sargent that his new ambition is to conquer the world.

CHAPTER V.—Allison starts a campaign for consolidation and control of the entire transportation system of the world.

CHAPTER VI.—Gail becomes popular and Aunt Helen thinks it necessary to advise her as to matrimonial probabilities.

CHAPTER VII.—Allison gains control of transcontinental traffic and arranges to absorb the Vedder court tenement property of Market Square church.

CHAPTER VIII.—Gail visits Vedder court, and meeting Boyd there, tells him that the cathedral Market Square church proposes to build will be out of profits wrung from squallor.

CHAPTER IX.—Gail becomes the center of magnetic attraction for the men of her kind's social set.

CHAPTER X.—At a meeting of the seven financial magnates of the country, Allison organizes the International Transportation company.

CHAPTER XI.—Rev. Smith Boyd undertakes Gail's spiritual instruction and Gail unconsciously gives Allison a hint that solves the Vedder court problem for him.

CHAPTER XII.—On an inspection trip to Allison's new subway the tunnel caves in and imprisons the party, who are rescued by the exertions of Allison and Boyd.

CHAPTER XIII.—The newspaper accounts of the subway accident place Gail in the spotlight and drive her to her home in the West. Her friends plot to coax her back.

CHAPTER XIV.—Dick Rodley is sent to lure Gail and Arly back to New York, and succeeds.

CHAPTER XV.—In the midst of a struggle with the dredge of humanity in Vedder court, Rev. Boyd Smith suddenly finds that he is a real living—and loving—man.

CHAPTER XVI.—Boyd proposes to Gail but, on the verge of acceptance, she remembers their religious differences, and refuses.

CHAPTER XVII.—Through Allison's connivance with the political boss Vedder court is condemned by the city as unsanitary.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Rev. Smith Boyd proposes to the vestry to replace the old Vedder court buildings with model tenements.

CHAPTER XIX.—Allison makes arrangements with foreign representatives for the consolidation of the transportation interests of the world.

CHAPTER XX.—The aristocratic Van Plooms negotiate for the hand of Gail in marriage to their son. Allison having, as he thinks, conquered the world, lays it at Gail's feet.

CHAPTER XXI.—Part of Allison's gigantic scheme is made public. He has the city condemn Vedder court. Gail finds that his scheme will bankrupt her uncle.

CHAPTER XXII.

Love.

Allison swept Gail into his arms, and rained hot kisses upon her, crushing her closely to him. She offered no resistance, and the very fact that she held so supinely in his arms, made Allison release her sooner than he might otherwise have done. She had known that this experience must come, that no look or gesture or word of hers could ward it off.

"You must never do that again," she told him, stepping back from him, and regaining her breath with an effort. She had lingered in the front parlors to receive him before her Uncle Jim should know that he was in the house, and she had led him straight into the little tete-a-tete reception room. She meant to free herself quickly.

"Why not?" he laughed, and advanced toward her, taking her attitude lightly, ascribing her action to a girlish whim, confident in his power over her. He meant to dispose of her coyness by taking her in his arms again. She belonged to him.

"Mr. Allison." The tone was cold enough, and deadly in earnest enough to arrest him.

"What's the matter, Gail?" he protested, ready to humor her, to listen to what she had to say, to smooth matters out.

"You have no right," she told him. "Yes I have," he jovially assured her. "I hope I don't have to wait until after marriage for a kiss. If that's the case I'll take you out and marry you right now."

There was an infection in his laugh, contagion in the assumption that all was right between them, and that any difference was one which could be straightened out with jolly patience, and Gail, though her determination would not have changed, might have softened toward him, had she not seen in his face a look which paled her lips. Ever since last night he had anticipated her, had rejoiced in his possession of her, had dreamed on the time when he should take her for his own; and his eyes were cloudy with his thoughts of her.

"Let us have a clear understanding, Mr. Allison." She was quite erect, and looking him directly in the eyes. Her own were deep and troubled, and the dark trace which had been about them in the morning had deepened. "I told you last night that I should need time in which to decide; I have decided. I shall not marry you."

He returned her gaze for a moment, and his brow clouded.

"You've changed since last night," he charged her.

"Possibly," she admitted. "It is more likely, however, that I have merely crystallized. I prefer not to discuss it." She saw on his face the growing instinct to humiliate her.

"You must discuss it," he insisted. "Last night when I took you in my arms you made no objection. I was justified in doing it again tonight. You're not a fool. You knew from the first that I wanted you, and you encouraged me. Now, I'm entitled to know what has made the change."

The telltale red spots began to appear in her cheeks.

"You," she told him. "Last night, your scheme of world empire seemed a wonderful thing to me, but since then I've discovered it cannot be built without dishonesty and cruelty; and you've used both."

His brow cleared. He laughed heartily.

"You've been reading the papers. There isn't a man in the financial field who wouldn't do everything I've done; and be proud of it. I can make you see this in the right light, Gail."

"It's a proof of your moral callousness that you think so," she informed him. "Can you make me see it in the right light that you even used me, of whom you pretended to think sacredly enough to marry, to help you in your most despicable trick of all?"

"Look here," he protested. "That would be impossible! You're misinformed."

"I wish I were," she returned. "Unfortunately, it is a matter of direct knowledge. You caused Vedder court to be torn down because I thought it should be wiped out of existence, and in the process you cheated Market Square church out of six million dollars!"

He could not have been more shocked if she had struck him.

"I knew you did not understand," he kindly reproved her. "I didn't want those old buildings. They couldn't have sold them for the wreckage price. When you suggested that they should be torn down, I saw it. They were a public menace, and the public was right with the movement. The condemnation price will cover all they could get from the property from any source. You see, you don't understand business," and his tone was forgiving.

"I'd have been foolish to pay six million dollars for something I couldn't use. You know, Gail, when the building commissioners came to look over those buildings, they were shocked. Some of them wouldn't have stood up another year. It was only the political influence of Clark and Chisholm and a few of the other big guns of the congregation, which kept them from being condemned long ago. You shouldn't interfere in business. It always creates trouble between man and wife," and he advanced to put his arm around her, and soothe her.

The hand with which she warded him off was effective this time. She stared at him in wonder. It seemed inconceivable that the moral sense of any intelligent man should be so blunted.

"There's another reason," she told him, despairing of making him realize that he had done anything out of the way. "I do not love you. I could not." For just a moment he was checked; then his jaws set.

"That is something you must learn. You have young notions of love, gleaned from poetry and fiction. You conceive it to be an ideal stage of existence, a mysterious something almost too delicate for perception by the human senses. I will teach you love, Gail! Look, and be stretched up his firm arm, as if in his grip he already held the reins of the mighty empire he was hewing out for her. "Love is a thing of strength, of power, of desire which shakes, and burns, and consumes with fever! Do you suppose that, with such love driving me on, any objection which you may make will stop me? No! I set out to attain you as the summit of my desire, the only thing in this world I want, and will have!"

Again that great fear of him possessed Gail. She feared many things. She feared that, in spite of her determination, he would still have her, and in that possibility alone lay the other fears so gruesome that she did not dare see them clearly! She knew that she must retain absolute control of herself.

"I shall not discuss the matter any further," she quietly said, and walking straight towards the door, passed by him, quite within the reach of his arm, without either looking at him or away from him. Something within his own strength respected hers, in spite of him. "I have said all that I have to say."

"So have I," he replied, coming closer to her as she stood in the doorway, and he gazed down at her with eyes in which there was insolent determination, and cruelty. "I have said that I mean to have you, and I will."

Without a word, she went into the hall. He followed her, and took his hat.

"Good evening," he said formally. "Good evening," she replied, and he went out of the door.

When he had gone, she flew up to her rooms, her first coherent thought being that she had accomplished it! She had seen Allison, and had given him her definite answer, and had gotten him out of the house while the others were back in the billiard room. She had held up splendidly, but she was weak now, and quivering in every limb, and she sank on her divan, supported on one outstretched arm; and in this uncomfortable position she took up the eternal question of Gail. The angry tears of mortification sprang into her eyes!

The library was quite steadily devoted to Vedder court tonight. A highly important change had come into the fortunes of Market Square church. It was as if a stone had been thrown into a group of cardboard houses. All the years of planning had gone the way of the wind, and the card houses had all to be built over again. The cathedral had receded by a good five years, unless the force and fire of Rev. Smith Boyd should be sufficient to coax capital out of the pockets of his millionaire congregation; and, in fact, that quite normal plan was already under advisement.

The five of this impromptu counsel were deep in the matter of ways and means, when a slender apparition, in clinging gray, came down the stairs.

It was Gail, who, for some reason unknown, even to her, had decided that she was selfish; and Rev. Smith Boyd's heart ached as he saw the pallor on her delicately tinted cheeks and the dark tracing about her brown eyes. She slipped quietly in among them, her brown hair loosely waved, so that unexpected threads of gold shone in it when she passed under the chandelier, and she greeted the callers pleasantly, and sat down in the corner, very silent. She was glad that she had come. It was restful in this little circle of friends.

A noise filled the hall, and even the lights of the library seemed to brighten, as Lucile and Ted, Arly and Gerald, and Dick Rodley, came tumbling in, laughing and chattering, and carrying hilarity in front of them like a wave. Gail shoved her tangle of thoughts still farther back in her head, and the sparkle returned into her eyes.

"We're bringing you a personal invitation to Arly and Gerald's yacht party," jabbered Lucile, kissing everybody in reach except Rev. Smith Boyd. "You might let Arly extend the invitation herself," objected Ted.

"I've given the pleasure to Gerald," laughed Arly, with a vivacious glance at that smiling gentleman. "He does it so much better. Now listen."

"It's a little informal week-end party, on the Whitecap," Gerald informed them, with a new something in him which quite satisfactorily took the place of cordiality. "Sort of a farewell affair. Arly and I are about to take a selfish two months' cruise, all by ourselves," and he glanced fondly at the handsome black-haired young woman under discussion. "We should be pleased to have you join us," and he included Mrs. Boyd and the young rector with a nod.

"Of course we'll come," agreed Gail. "Doctor Boyd, can't you arrange for a week-end party once in your life?"

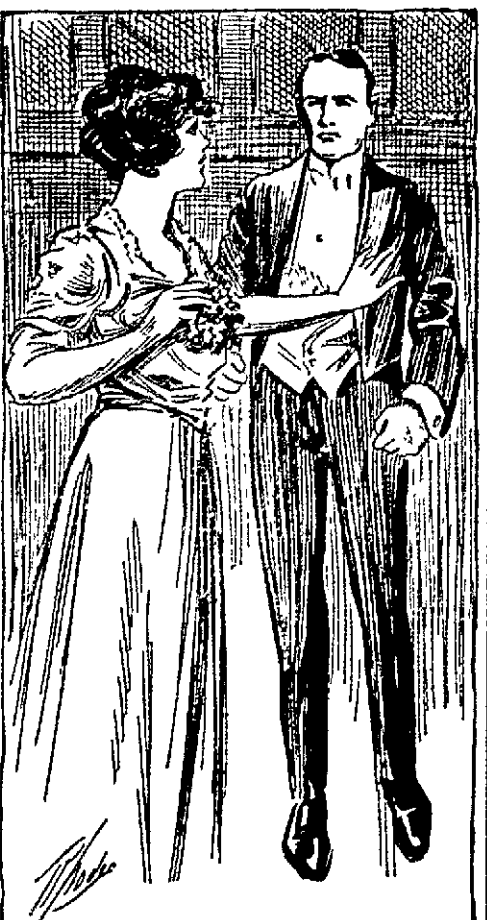

"Unfortunately custom has decreed that week-end parties shall cover Sundays," he regretted, but there was a calculating look in his eye which sent Lucile over to him.

"Play hooky just once," she begged. "This is only a family crowd, the Babbits and Marion Kenneth, and we who are here."

Rev. Smith Boyd looked at his mother, and that lady brightened visibly.

"When is it to be?" he asked.

"Saturday," Arly informed him, joining Lucile, who had sat on the arm of Mrs. Boyd's chair. Arly sat on the other one, and Gerald Fosland, with an entirely new appreciation of beauty, thought he had never seen a prettier picture than the sweet-faced old lady with the fresh and charming young woman on either side of her. Rev. Smith Boyd glanced, for just an instant at Gail, who was now standing on the leather couch leaning against the wall. He had been at some pains to avoid this young lady recently, for it is natural to spare one's self distress; but there was a look of loneliness about her which sent his heart out to her in quick sympathy.

The Hand With Which She Warded Him Off Was Effective Now.

"I think I'll play hooky," he announced, with a twinkle in the eyes which he now cast upon his mother.

"That's being a good sport," approved Ted. "Stay away a Sunday or two, and Market Square church will appreciate you better."

"Let's have some music," demanded Lucile.

"Gail and Doctor Boyd must sing for you," announced Aunt Grace, in whom there was a trace of wistfulness. "They do sing so beautifully together!"

"I'm afraid I can't tonight," refused Gail hastily, and indeed she had good reason why her voice should not have its firm and true quality just now. "I will accompany Doctor Boyd, though, with pleasure," and she started toward the music room.

Rev. Smith Boyd was cut off from the ordinary lies about not being in good voice, and suffering from a slight cold, and such things. He hesitated a moment, and then he followed.

The Bedouin Love Song, the Garden of Sleep, and others of the solo repertoire which Gail had selected for him, came pulsing out of the music room, first hesitantly, and then with more strength, as the friendly nearness between himself and the accompanist became better established.

Presently, the listeners in the library noticed an unusual pause between the songs, a low-voiced discussion, and then, the two perfectly blended voices rose in a harmony so perfect that there was moisture in the eyes of two of the ladies present.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Gail First!

Allison, springing forward with a jerk as he left Jim Sargent's house, headed his long, low runabout up the avenue. He raced into the park, and glanced up at the lookout house as he sped on past; but it was only a fleeting look. He needed no reminder of Gail. As he passed Roseleaf Inn, he slowed down. The roadhouse may have given him, and probably did, another reminder of Gail, in such a manner as to concrete him into logical thought; for he slowed down the terrific speed which had been the accompaniment of his unreasoning emotion. The driving required too much concentration for specific thought.

With this turning of his mental attitude, even the slow running of the car seemed to disturb him, and, about half a mile past Roseleaf Inn, he came slowly to a stop, sitting at the wheel, with his head bent slightly forward, and staring at the spot where the roadway had ceased to roll beneath his machine. Presently he became aware of the cold, and running his car to the side of the road, he stepped out, and, buttoning his coat around him, crossed a fence and walked through the narrow strip of trees to the river bank, where he stood for a moment looking upon the misty Hudson, sparkling under the moonlight. He began to walk up and down the bank presently, the turf sinking spongy under his feet, and it was noticeable that his pace grew more and more rapid, until he was striding at a furious rate of speed.

The man was in a torment of passion. He had spent a lifetime in the deliberate acquisition of everything upon which he had set his will, and it was one of the things upon which he had built his success, that, once he had fixed his desire deliberately upon anything, he had held unwaveringly to that object, employing all the forces of which strong men are capable; patient waiting, dogged persistence, or vicious grappling, whichever was best adapted to gain his ends.

Gail! If there had been tender thoughts of her, they were gone now. It was so that he had centered his mind upon her, and himself and his will, until, in all creation, there was nothing else but that was trivial; ambition, power, wealth, fame, the command of empires and of men, were nothing, except as they might lead to her!

So it was that he had come this far, and the roadway to his present height was marked by the cripples he had left behind him, without compunction, without mercy, without compassion. Bankrupts strewn his way, broken men of purpose higher than his own, useful factors in the progress of human life, builders and creators who had advanced the interest of the commonwealth, but who had been more brilliant in construction than they had been in reaping the rewards of their building. It was for Allison to do this. It had been his specialty; the reaping of rewards. It had been his faculty to permit others to build, to encourage them in it, and then, when the building was done, to wrest it away from the builders. That marked him as the greatest commercial genius of his time; and he had much applause for it.

Women. Yes, there had been women, creatures of a common mold with whom he had amused himself, had taken them in their freshness, and broken them, and thrown them away; this in his earlier years. But in his maturity, he had bent all his strength to a greater passion; the acquirement of all those other things which men had wanted and held most dear, among them acquisition, and power, and success. Perhaps it had been bad for him, this concentration, for now it left him at the height of his maturity, with mistaken fancies, with long bent from with disproportionate desires. Bringing to these, he had the tremendously abnormal moral effect of never having been thwarted in a thing upon which he had set his mind, and of believing, by past accomplishment, that anything upon which he had set his wish must be his, or else every victory he had ever gained would be swept aside and made of no value. He must accomplish, or die!

He was without God, this man; he had nothing within him which conceded, for a moment, a greater power than his own. In all his mental imagery, which was rich enough in material things, there was no conception of a deity, or of a need for one. To what should he pray, and for what, when he had himself to rely upon? Worship was an idealistic diversion, a poetic illusion, the refuge of the weak, who excused their lack of strength by ascribing it to a mysterious something beyond the control of any man. He tolerated the popular notion that there must be a God, as he tolerated codes of social ethics; the conventions which laid down, for instance, what a gentleman might or might not do, externally, and still remain a gentleman. In the meantime, if a man-made law came between him and the accomplishment of his ends, he broke it, without a trace of thought that he might be wrong. Laws were the mutual safeguard of the weak, to protect themselves against the encroachment of the strong; and it was in the equally natural province of the strong to break down those safeguards. In the same way he disregarded moral laws. They, too, were for the upholding of the weak, and the mere fact that they existed was proof enough that they were an acknowledgment of the right of the strong to break them.

There is a mistake here. It lies in the statement that Allison recognized no God. He did. Allison, Not Allison, the man, but the unconquerable will of Allison, a will which was a divinity in itself. He believed in it, centered on it all his faith, poured out to it all the fervidness of his heart, of his mind, of his spirit, of his body. He worshipped it!

So it was that he came to the consideration of the one thing which had attempted to deny itself to him. Gail!

A flame raged through his veins which fairly shook him with its violence. It was not only the reflex of his determination to have her, but it was the terrific need of her which had grown up in him. Have her? Of course he would have her! If she would not come to him willingly, he would take her! She was not to be considered in it any more than he had considered any other adverse factor in the attainment of anything he had desired. He was possessed of a rage now, which centered itself upon one object, and one alone. Gail! She was his new summit, his new peak, the final one where he had planned to rest; but now his angry thought was to attain it, and spurn it, broken and crumbled, as had been all the other barriers to his will, and press ruthlessly onward into higher skies, he knew not where. It was no time now, to think on that. Gail first!

A Flame Raged Through His Veins Which Fairly Shook Him.

OPENING GUN FIRED

Stevens Point Business Men's Association Begins New Season Most Auspiciously.

The first fall meeting of the Stevens Point Business Men's association was held in the public library club rooms last Thursday evening, and it was perhaps the most auspicious "opener" in the association's history. Disappointed in the attempt to secure an out-of-town speaker, although William George Bruce, secretary of the Milwaukee Merchants & Manufacturers association, had promised to be present, it was a case of falling back on "home talent," and the results were such as to warrant future repetitions of the course pursued.

After the dinner hour, during which a corps of young lady students of the Normal, under the supervision of Miss Bessie M. Allen, director of the domestic science department, served an excellent menu to seventy, including a number of members of the county board of supervisors, who were invited guests, short talks were made by Prof. O. W. Neale and Martin Luther, both of whom are newcomers among the citizenry of Stevens Point. Both commended the spirit of Stevens Point's business men, and emphasized some cardinal rules for civic development. A. E. Bourn, county clerk, was also called upon and read a letter from L. H. Cook of Wausau, county clerk of Marathon county, which was replete with good natured satire and humor. Portage county was the target for Mr. Cook's shots, and Mr. Bourn freely admitted he was paid back in full for all the provoking statements he had made regarding Marathon county.

Attorney W. E. Fisher brought out the real topic for discussion when he presented a resolution providing that the association go on record as being in favor of the engagement of a county agricultural representative and that this information be conveyed to the county board. After a few words of explanation Mr. Fisher gave way to W. B. Angelo, who, through his familiarity with farming conditions in this and other counties and his acquaintance with the work being done by county agents, was able to give much information on the subject. Mr. Angelo pictured typical farming conditions, showing how many acres of land, by reason of neglect in restoring properties that have been depleted through years of crop cultivation, have approached the point where expert diagnosis and treatment is necessary. He quoted statistics and cited examples to show why an agricultural agent is a dividend paying investment.

C. E. Urbahn, though not a farmer, is no less interested in agricultural development, through his position as superintendent of the northern division of the Soo line. In taking up the county agent discussion after Mr. Angelo had concluded, he gave some impressions in regard to the movement he had gleaned from the address delivered by E. L. Luther at the court house on Wednesday evening. Pres. John F. Sims of the Normal school also came out as an enthusiastic advocate of the farm supervisor. Speaking from the standpoint of an educator who has a personal interest in agricultural advancement, he recounted the strides that have been made in the last fifty years and expressed the hope that the county board would take the road to progress by authorizing the employment of a county agent.

When the vote on Mr. Fisher's resolution was taken not a dissenting voice was heard. W. B. Angelo, local representative on the committee that is handling the fight of the Wisconsin valley group of cities for a re-adjustment of freight rates, reported that briefs had been filed with the interstate commerce commission and the state railroad commission.

M. E. Bruce, secretary of the Stevens Point fair association, read letters from secretaries of similar organizations in the state, in which it was brought out that while other associations are receiving public aid they are face to face with big deficits. Mr. Bruce pointed out that the local association is practically self-sustaining and asked for cooperation on the part of business men in providing for permanent improvements at the fair grounds.

READY TO ACCEPT JOB

Common Council Satisfied With Normal Ave. Pavement—Contractors Must File Bond.

Only the filing of satisfactory maintenance bond stands in the way of the complete acceptance by the city of Stevens Point of the new asphaltic concrete pavement on Normal avenue.

At a meeting of the common council Tuesday evening, the board of public works, composed of Alderman J. E. Leahy, Comptroller G. L. Rogers and City Attorney W. B. Murat, presented a report stating that they had carefully inspected the new street and recommending that it be accepted as soon as a suitable bond guaranteeing maintenance for five years, without cost to the city, is filed by the contractors, J. Rasmussen & Sons Co., according to agreement. It was further voted to pay the city's share of the cost, nearly $4,000, as soon as the bond is approved by the city attorney.

A report by W. F. Reichardt, the city's consulting engineer, showed the total cost of the improvements on Normal avenue to be $20,496, divided into the following items: 10,622.2 square yards of paving at $1.35, $14,339.97; 4,781 cubic yards of excavating at 35 cents, $1,673.35; 8,618.4 lineal feet of concrete curb and gutter at 45 cents, $3,878.28; 379 lineal feet of retaining curb at 20 cents, $7,580; 14 catch basins at $35, $490; 2 catch basin inlets at $17.50, $35.

A resolution, introduced by Alderman Playman and passed, provides that the city borrow $10,000 from the First National bank, payable on or before January 1. This money will be used in redeeming the First ward school bonds, which were due Nov. 15. The new issue of bonds are not yet ready, owing to delay in printing. The board of public works was instructed, on motion of Alderman McDonald, to investigate the manholes installed on Normal avenue and report as to whether or not the water company is liable for the cost. City Attorney Murat of the board of public works stated that the manholes had been put in under protest and that if the water company is legally liable they will be held for the cost.

STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Among the railroad men in this vicinity, Dan Mullen, conductor on the Soo line's short line between Milwaukee and Rugby Junction, has a large acquaintance, and it will be generally regretted that Mr. Mullen has been compelled to give up railroading, temporarily at least, on account of his health. Mr. Mullen was in charge of train No. 205 when it left Milwaukee shortly before noon Monday, and it was while on duty that he was stricken with paralysis, his right side, including his limbs, being affected. A doctor who was on the train gave him attention, and C. M. Winter of Fond du Lac, superintendent of the Soo line's southern district, took the train to Rugby and back, Mr. Mullen remaining on board.

Dr. Daniels of Mosinee was a professional caller in Dancy Sunday, coming to see Peter B. Jersey, who is in poor health.

Wm. Buch has recently added a planer to his saw mill in this village. He was busy the past week planing lumber for shipment.

Miss Alice Dinwoodie of Milwaukee is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. W. A. Clements. Miss Dinwoodie just returned from visiting the big exposition at 'Frisco and other points in the west.

Quite a number from here were at Mosinee last Wednesday morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. Glen Douville. Mrs. Douville previous to her marriage less than two years ago was Nellie Lutz. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Lutz of Kronenwetter and a granddaughter of Mrs. S. Kronenwetter. She was for some years engaged in the millinery business at Mosinee. Seven months ago a son was born to Mrs. Douville at a time when she was suffering from a severe attack of pleuro-pneumonia, and since then her health failed gradually. The whole community mourned her sad and untimely death and extend sympathy to the little son and sorrowing husband and relatives.

Within the past few weeks several hundred acres of land in the Dancy drainage district have been sold, and if the coming spring is at all favorable, there will be a large acreage developed. Goodrich & Goodrich of Peoria, Ill., who recently purchased a section in the district from Mathes & Pratt, real estate dealers of Grand Rapids, write that they have all plans made for cultivating the property, and parties from Streator, Ill., who lately bought another section plan like improvement. S. O. Spring of Chicago, who owns several hundred acres in the district, was here a few days ago and states that he will break and put under crop a large acreage the coming spring. Negotiations are now pending for two more sections, and that would also be in the hands of developers. The crops in the Dancy country the past year were firstclass, the grain turning out exceptionally well and seeding was also very good. Through the efforts of Geo. Wolf, chairman of Eau Pleine, the grading on the road across the marsh from the Week or Marshfield road, running south to Junction City, has been completed so automobiles can cross that way. This shortens the distance to Junction City several miles and opens a fine stretch of country; in fact no better can be found anywhere in this section. The new highway just completed crosses what is known as section 2, which section of land is owned by G. G. Knoller and connects with the macadam road that leads to Junction City by Mr. Wolf's farm. It is very close to A. E. Dafe's farm.

ALL PLANS GOOD; EXECUTION POOR

That Is Winston Churchill's Explanation of Failures.

FISHER AND KITCHENER CAUSE

In Speech Former Naval Department Head Blames War Lord and French for Antwerp Fiasco—Defends Dardanelles—Throws Failure Onto Fisher for Non-Guidance.

LONDON, ENG.—Winston Churchill told the house of commons that he took the full responsibility for the inception of the Dardanelles campaign. He refused, however, to shoulder the blame for the failure of the expedition to save Antwerp. The blame for this failure, he frankly told the parliament, belonged to Premier Asquith and to the French strategists, for with them, not with him, had originated the idea to check the Germans in that fashion.

Dardanelles Legitimate Gamble. "The Dardanelles enterprise," said the former first lord of the admiralty, "I regarded as a legitimate gamble of war for a prize of an incalculable value and here was a reasonable chance of winning. On that basis, I went before the ministry and accepted full responsibility for initiating that enterprise."

Even though the Antwerp enterprise failed as a military adventure, Mr. Churchill said it had some good results in that it forced the Germans later to give battle on the Yser instead of further in the south of France.

Asquith Praises Him.

As Mr. Churchill took his seat, amid cheers, Premier Asquith stepped forward and referring to him said, "I have always found him a wise counsellor, a brilliant colleague and a faithful friend. He takes with him in leaving the ministry universal good will."

Though frankly telling the house of commons in so many words "I am responsible for the Dardanelles campaign" his declaration was marked by one passage tending to reduce his own responsibility at the expense of Admiral Sir John Fisher, who was first sea lord when Churchill was first lord of the admiralty.

Blames Admiral Fisher.

He asserted that Sir John, while opposed to a reduction of Great Britain's naval strength in home waters, "never criticised the method of attack on the Dardanelles." He added further that he did not receive clear guidance from Admiral Fisher before the expedition was decided on or the subsequent firm support to which he was entitled. In reply to his critics who had charged that Britain went into the Dardanelles action "half-cocked," Churchill emphasized that in the beginning the enterprise was profoundly maturely and elaborately considered.

If any operations in the history of the world were worth carrying through with sustained fury and utter disregard for life, Mr. Churchill contended, the operations at the Dardanelles were worth it.

Predicts German Defeat.

Incidentally Mr. Churchill sounded an optimistic note as to the eventual outcome of the war. Also, he made another prophecy.

"We are passing through a bad time, which probably will be worse before it will be better," said he, "but it will be better. If we endure, the campaign of 1916 should be decided against Germany by her shortage of men."

WILSON RECOGNIZES NO "LES MAJESTES"

Ousted Man Who Criticized Marriage Ordered Reinstated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A resolution with "no ifs or hovevers about it" was ordered by President Wilson for George Burditt, assistant postmaster at Waukegan, Ill., who had been ousted by his postmaster, apparently with the sanction of the postoffice department, largely because of deprecatory remarks he had made concerning the approaching marriage of President Wilson.

This declaration came from the White House at a time when it was known that a statement was being prepared by the postoffice department showing that alleged "disloyalty" on Burditt's part was not the only charge against him. It was made clear that the president, thoroughly distressed by the incident, hoped to end it as quickly as it should come up.

"You may say that the President has ordered Mr. Burditt's reinstatement," said Secretary Taft. "There are no ifs or hovevers about it."

FEAR TREACHERY BY CONSTANTINE

London Believes Kitchener Faces Grave Balkan Problem.

SUSPECT COUP BY GREEK KING

Kaiser Is Planning to Enter Constantinople in State—Turks Elated Over Successes—Russians Gain in Teheran—Berlin Says 8,500 Serbs Are Prisoners.

LONDON, ENG. — Hints of treachery planned by the Greek king are heard on all sides here and it is generally believed that when Earl Kitchener, minister of war, reaches Athens he will face the gravest problem of his life in his efforts to protect the Anglo-French army that has its headquarters at the Greek port of Saloniki.

The Greek plan, as it is reported here, is simple: The Greek army will be kept mobilized, and will be given to neither party, but if the Anglo-French-Serb force is beaten by the Germans or the Bulgars and forced to retreat onto Greek soil it will be disarmed and interned as a violator of Greek neutrality.

King in Full Control.

That Kitchener realizes this situation and that he is on his way to Athens armed with full power to settle the question of Greek neutrality is admitted here. Because of his intimate knowledge of the politics of the near East it is believed he will be able to solve the problem of the status of King Constantine and end the "benevolent neutrality" attitude of Greece, which is regarded here as only a cloak to a menace to the allied forces in the Balkans.

That the Greek constitutional government has been set down is generally admitted. The dissolution of parliament and the control of the army by the pro-German king has destroyed all semblance of democracy and taken from ex-Premier Venizelos the last vestige of power to aid the allies. There is a chance that a revolution may follow the calling of the elections, since Venizelos has practically decided that since the election is illegal his party will not take part in the balloting.

Troops Still Landing.

Troops of the entente allies, arriving in an increasing stream at Saloniki, tax the resources of the port to railroad to the utmost.

8,500 Serbs Captured.

BERLIN. — According to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the French general staff has given up its intention to send troops by way of Santi Quaranta, on the Adriatic Sea, in southern Albania to Monastir, a distance of 120 miles through the mountains. The French troops landed in Santi Quaranta, therefore, already have been parked.

Announcement was made by the war office of the capture of 8,500 Serbians, with twelve cannon. Of these 7,000 prisoners and seven cannon were taken by the Bulgarians.

Russians Near Teheran.

PETROGRAD. — A Russian army already is within forty miles of Teheran and is encamped at Yangiema. The German legation at Teheran caused to be transmitted a quantity of ammunition and arms to Emir Hismet, one of the chief organizers of Persian opposition to the Russians and the Russian and British legations thereupon sent word of the act of the Persian vizier.

The German, Austrian and Turkish archives have been deposited in the American consulate.

ITALY SENDS NOTE ON ANCONA SINKING

Declares Attack on Liner "Unparalleled Atrocity."

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Secretary Lansing personally received from Macechi di Celler, the Italian ambassador, a communication dated July 14, Italy to all allied nations concerning the sinking of the Italian liner Ancona, a vessel of 5,000 tons and other non-combatants aboard.

The statement recites the circumstances of the attack, charging that "without even a blank shot" of warning from the attacking submarine the vessel was shelled and that the killing and wounding of passengers continued after the ship had stopped.

The liner here is that the entire question of the submarine warfare and the obligations of a submarine commander to see that neutrals are in a place of safety before destroying a prize will be taken up by the United States with the Austrian government.

Mayor Mitchell Operated On.

NEW YORK. — Mayor Mitchell has been operated on successfully for an acute attack of appendicitis at Roosevelt hospital. A quick and complete recovery is expected.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR.

Thursday, Nov. 11.—The report that the Ancona was shelled without warning by the submarine that sank her, and the loss of from 10 to 30 Americans brings up another ugly situation for the U. S. government.

Berlin admits that Gen. Von Hindenburg has been forced to evacuate position to the west of Riga owing to the rains making the ground swampy. Berlin claims minor successes at other points.

Petrograd claims a general Russian gain along the entire battle line. Von Hindenburg is declared to be losing ground daily, and on the south front many German and Austrian prisoners are reported taken.

Serbia admits gains by Bulgarians in the Monrava district, but claims the invaders repulsed with heavy losses by the French and Serbians at other points.

Friday, Nov. 12.—King Constantine has defied the war party in Greece and dissolved parliament. An election is set for December 19.

A great battle has begun, according to Athens dispatch, between the Anglo-French-Serb forces and Bulgars. The line extends from within 20 miles of the Alban border to the vicinity of Strumitsa.

Berlin claims 1,700 Serbs captured with enormous military supplies, and thinks most of Serb army will be made prisoners.

Earl Kitchener's destination is said to be Greece.

Petrograd says Von Hindenburg has lost so much ground that the Russ war office considers Riga and Dvinsk safe for the winter.

Winston Churchill has resigned his new post, chancellor of Lancashire, in the coalition cabinet and will join the army in France.

Saturday, Nov. 13.—Chief interest in military operations continues to center upon the Balkans. The Teutons continue eating their way along, but the Serbians are now fighting in the mountains and the progress of the invaders has slowed up.

In Southern Serbia increasing resistance by the Serbian forces opposing the Bulgarians and the increasing activity of the Franco-British forces give hope to military observers in the allied capitals that the enveloping operations by which the Serbians seemed likely to be cut off from retreat, may not, after all, succeed.

Teutonic submarines continue active in the Baltic. The British Den of Crombie of 5,000 tons has been sunk somewhere in the Mediterranean.

The Italian steamer Firenze has been torpedoed somewhere on the Egyptian coast. Six passengers and fifteen of the crew are missing.

Sunday, Nov. 14.—Serbians continue to fall back from mountain range to mountain range before the Austro-German advance. Berlin reports 1,000 or more prisoners daily.

On the Morava river the Serbs have made a stand and are repulsing the Bulgarians.

The British and French are making some progress to the south.

King Constantine replying to a protest of the central powers against the landing of troops at Saloniki, says that it is an open port, and neutrality is not being violated.

Italy has joined the allies by sending a warship to Saloniki.

Berlin reports a great success on the Sty river, claiming the Germans have pierced the Russian line and taken 1,500 prisoners.

Italy, in communication to the neutral powers, denies that the Ancona, sunk by a submarine, carried any soldiers, reservists or war munitions of any kind.

Austro-Hungary declares officially that the liner refused to halt when ordered.

L. M. Marshall, at one time engaged in business in this city, died at his home in Port Howard, on Saturday, the 8th inst., in the 66th year of his age.

John D. Langosky of this city and Miss Albina Burzynska, of Wausau, were married at St. Michael's church, Wausau, Wednesday, Nov. 5th, by Rev. Palcher. They will reside in Wausau.

John A. McDonald, a resident of this city for twenty-five years previous to two years ago, died at Rhinelander on Sunday morning at 3 o'clock, aged 46 years. Two brothers and one sister, William, of Nevada, and Alex and Miss Anna, of Wausau, are left to mourn.

Shortly after nine o'clock on Thursday forenoon last, Frederick C. Jas. R. Luce, of this city, performed a surgical operation, last Friday afternoon, that was certainly novel, to say the least. The second toe of his right foot had been troubling him for some time, on account of its swollen condition, and irritating the others. It being a nuisance, as he expressed it, Mr. Luce concluded that amputation was his only relief, and that he should be his own surgeon. He accordingly procured some string and with this pulled and separated the bothersome toe from the others, attaching the ends of the string to nails which he had driven in the floor. Then placing the toe upon an ax-handle, he took a sharp chisel, and with one blow from a hammer severed the toe closely as possible to the foot. To the ordinary mortal, an operation of this kind would have been a severe one, but Jim went about it as cool as though he was cutting his finger nails, and taking the chisel again he cut off another piece of the bone, after which a file was used by him in smoothing down the ragged edges. Not having a needle with which to sew up the wound, he bandaged it as well as possible, remaining about the house for some hours and then came down town, procured a needle and went back to finish the work that he had commenced, which he did with his own hands most successfully. Mr. Luce is now about the streets, is somewhat lame, and carries the severed member in a small bottle filled with alcohol, which he exhibits to those who wish to see.

A VAGRANT WINTER VERSE.

Pretty snow-flakes, white and fleecy,
How you fell a week gone by,
Like a million tiny feathers,
Sifted downward from the sky.
Just a harbinger of winter,
But a few days and it's here,
When Jack Frost nips hard our noses
And our wraps of furs are dear.
When the furnace is our comfort,
While those north winds blow so cold,
When our fun is all indoors,
Where those "olde tyme" yarns are told.
Winter, thou art long and dreary
Frosty, icy, snowy, cold,
Much we count your days returning,
To warm summer dear and old.
Frank B. Shannock.

A WISE BIRD, HE IS.

Harris Gordon, the Thanouser (Mutual) leading man, after having insured the good favor of all the traffic policemen from New York to the Thanouser studio at New Rochelle by the liberal distribution of smiles and cigars for the past two months, has purchased a new sixty horsepower machine. The gifts have prejudiced the policemen in the young man's favor, and he is the only man who dares beat the speed limit without danger of arrest. His friends suggest that some day he will fly past so fast that the officers will fail to recognize him, and then he will have to extend courtesy in a more substantial manner than tobacco.

FAIR DIRECTORS MEET.

At a meeting of the directors of the Stevens Point Fair association, held last Friday evening, it was voted to borrow $200 with which to finish up the work of reconstructing the race track, which was begun the first of the present month, as previously stated in The Gazette. The council appropriated $350, the association has raised something over $300 in money and donations of labor, and this, with the $200 borrowed, will clean up the state.

The Stevens Point Fair association receives less assistance from public funds than perhaps any organization of similar size in the state, yet, in contrast to many, it manages to meet its obligations and maintain a comfortable working balance, year after year in spite of the interference of the weather man. It is conservative in its expenditures, but progressive in tendencies, and it now has a foundation that is amply fitted to support future growth.

POLOVER LADY DEAD.

Mrs. D. Smith Harroun, Old Resident of County, is Summoned—Funeral Held Saturday.

Mrs. D. Smith Harroun, member of an old and prominent Portage county family, passed away at her home in Plover village at 11:50 o'clock last Thursday morning, November 11. Mrs. Harroun had long been in poor health and was confined to her bed for about three months.

Emily Louise Burke was born in New York state March 1, 1848, and came to Portage county with her father, William Burke, and other members of the family during her girlhood. She was married to Mr. Harroun February 12, 1872, and until removing to Plover village about 14 years ago they resided on a farm in Plover township. She is survived by her husband, two children, Mrs. Porter Sherman of Buena Vista and Miss Merle, at home, and a brother, William Burke, of Detroit, Mich. Six other children have passed away.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, Rev. J. T. Kendall officiating. Interment was in the Plover cemetery. The pallbearers were M. F. Pierce, B. F. Parker, Fred Taylor, H. A. Marlatt, Wm. Newby and Myron Barker.

AT LOCAL HOSPITAL.

Marshfield News: Sister Trasilla, who has been at St. Joseph's hospital for nearly four years, has been transferred to St. Michael's hospital, Stevens Point. She is one of the most competent of nurses, loved and respected by all who know her, and idolized by those whose lives she has saved by her conscientious care. Sister Trasilla will be greatly missed by her many friends, who will follow her with loving thought to her new home. It will be difficult to fill her place, as few are so well fitted to fill every position. The best wishes and blessings of her many friends go with her.

CHOIR GIVES CONCERT.

The annual concert of the Baptist church choir was given in the church last Friday evening and was a fine success from an artistic as well as financial standpoint. The receipts totaled $36.50. Those who took part, in addition to the choir sections, were Miss Kate Ball, Mrs. W. W. Gregory, Miss Blanche Leigh, Mrs. C. H. Vetter, Mrs. Elmer Austin, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Playman, Miss Larson, Miss Pauline Furringer, Miss Eleanor Furringer, Mrs. James Blake, F. J. Wilson, F. E. Noble and Carlos Furringer.

ONLY CHILD DIES.

Sylvia, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lampe, died at the family home, 1716 Center street, Milwaukee, at 4:15 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, aged thirteen years and nine months. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the residence to Evangelical Emmanuel's church, with interment in Wanderers' Rest cemetery. Mr. Lampe and family formerly resided in Stevens Point, and the sympathy of many local friends is extended to the bereaved parents.

CHRISTMAS CUSTOM REVIVED.

"Old, very old in England," we read in the December issue of the Woman's Home Companion, "is the custom of setting lighted candles in the windows on Christmas Eve to give holiday greeting to the passer-by, but little use has been made of this charming idea in our country. Baltimore, however, has had a city-wide lighting of candles which was so successful that it is repeated every year.

"Weeks before Christmas, when plans were being made for the Community Tree, it was suggested that each household set lighted candles in the parlor windows to wish 'Merry Christmas' to their fellow townsmen, not even the most enthusiastic supporter of the Candle Greeting expected to see half the number of windows that were lighted when Christmas Eve came.

"Scarcely a city block in any section of the city was without at least one illumination, and it was not rare to see every house in a row brightened by this evidence of 'peace on Earth, good will to men.' It warmed the very cockles of one's heart to walk through street after street with these silent Christmas greetings everywhere, and no one who has gone through such experience could ever want to know another Christmas Eve without them."

FARM EXPERT SPEAKS.

E. L. Luther, Supervisor of County Agricultural Agents, Explains New Movement.

The question of engaging an agricultural agent for Portage county, which has been the subject of an undecurrent of sentiment for the last year or two, was given new impetus by an address delivered to members of the county board, farmers and business men at the court house last Wednesday evening by E. L. Luther, state supervisor of county agricultural agents and director of farmers' institutes in Wisconsin.

Mr. Luther has the distinction of having been the first county agricultural agent in the United States, having served Oneida county in that capacity from 1912 until he was appointed to his present position, and is a recognized authority on scientific farming. Strictest attention was given him during his two hour talk, which was made clearer by the use of stereopticon views and maps.

The duties of the county agent, his accomplishments in Wisconsin and other states, as well as in European countries, and future possibilities of farm supervision were discussed by Mr. Luther in more or less detail. Probably most of those who heard him were previously familiar to some extent with the subject, but it is certain that all were given clearer conceptions of the duties and the value of county agents than ever before.

ARNOTT WOMEN GUESTS

Stevens Point Woman's Club Held a Very Successful Meeting Last Saturday

The large number of ladies in attendance at the Woman's Club meeting Saturday were well repaid for coming out in such inclement weather. The club had as their guests a number of ladies from the Arnott club.

On all sides hearty praise was expressed for the pleasure and profit afforded by the meeting, which was under the direction of Miss Frances C. Bannach, county superintendent of schools. Following is the program:

Reading, "Billings of '49," Mrs. C. F. Watson. Mrs. Watson's reading was an excellent interpretation and to an enthusiastic encore Mrs. Watson responded by reading a short poem, "Life," by Edward R. Sill.

Piano duet, Brahms' "Hungarian Dances," Miss Blanche Leigh and Mrs. James Blake showed exceptional skill on the part of the performers, both as to execution and interpretation. The ladies responded to an encore by playing Greig's "Morning Mood."

Address, "Why Country Women and City Women Should Become Acquainted," by Miss Annie Reynolds, state school inspector, Madison.

Miss Reynolds said in part: "Work done intelligently, with cheerfulness and pleasure in the doing, trains the body and mind, and work done in association with women of our own and other communities trains the heart."

"Growth in democracy by women is greatly to be desired and must be attained if noble work is to be accomplished. Town and country women will become better acquainted by espousing a common cause."

"The personal equation is of the most inestimable value in coming in contact with others, and Miss Margaret Wilson's rare tact and graciousness, exhibited at the recent reception tendered her in Milwaukee, is an excellent illustration of this power. It was Miss Wilson's wish to dispense with the usual formal line of the reception and be permitted to mingle with the crowd, being introduced and introducing herself when necessary quite informally."

Miss Reynolds enumerated many causes which ought to claim the united attention of city and country women. Among those most emphasized were the necessity of improving toilet conditions in city and country school houses, training children in the care of the teeth and in the habit of living and sleeping in fresh air, and responsibility for the young, wayward and incorrigible.

The speaker closed by making a plea that teachers and parents get better acquainted, thus making mutual helpfulness possible.

Miss Reynolds illustrated in herself the power of the personal equation. She is charming in appearance and talks with great ease, conveying sincerity of purpose to and winning conviction from her audience.

Two vocal solos, one in response to an encore, by Miss Blanche Leigh, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Blake, closed the program. The numbers were "Go Not Happy Day" and "Little House of Dreams." Miss Leigh's selections were happily chosen and their rendition gave much pleasure to the audience.

CLOSED FOR SEASON.

After having cut a little over 8,000,000 feet of lumber, the saw mill of the John Week Lumber Co. was closed for the season at 11:30 o'clock last Saturday morning. Although the logs in the mill pond were all manufactured into lumber, the company has a good supply in the storage boom for use when the mill is put in operation next spring.

DEER AT PARK FALLS.

Park Falls Herald: Emil Russell is the first hunter to report having bagged the big game this season. Emil shot a nice large buck on the first day. Frank Russell shipped the first deer of the season this (Friday) morning, and he bagged the game right here in the city. The state game laws prohibit shipping a deer on the first day of the season and some lucky (or unlucky) hunter at Morse who had already shot his deer attempted to ship it south on Thursday. As a state conservation warden, Frank seized the deer and forwarded it to the state game warden's department at Madison.

WALLFLOWERS, TAKE NOTICE!

"The modern man is not strong for early marriage," says a commentator in the December issue of the Woman's Home Companion. "He knows that it means a sentence to hard labor for him, because he knows what it costs to keep the modern family. That's why you hear nice, attractive but quiet girls say they can't understand why we pass them up for the flashy girl, the dancemad girl, the girl who would doubtless make an extravagant, useless wife. We have our play-day with the jolly, lively girl, because she is mighty good company for the time being. She is not anxious to marry and settle down any more than the man is."

YOUNG MAN DIES.

Julius Buza passed away at his home near Amherst Junction on Thursday, Nov. 4. He had been in poor health for six or seven months before his death and heart trouble was the cause of his demise. He was 35 years old. Twelve years ago he was married to Miss Anna Przbelesky, who, together with two sons and a daughter, survives him, as do also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Buza of Arnott, and nine brothers and four sisters. The funeral was held from the Fancher Catholic church on Saturday following his death, Rev. L. J. Pescinski officiating.

The family are desirous of taking this opportunity to express their appreciation to the many friends who assisted them during their time of sorrow.

WINTER IS HERE.

With his usual lack of formality, Old Man Winter jumped in on central Wisconsin last Saturday. Following a period of unusually pleasant weather, bringing to a close a fall that was near to ideal, there was a sudden change on Saturday and at noon snow flurries were in evidence. At first the flakes disappeared as fast as they fell, but as they increased in volume they gradually piled up to a depth of more than an inch, making the first real snowfall of the season.

NEARLY A CENTENARIAN

Mrs. Magdalene Jaszdzewski, Portage County's Oldest Resident, Died Thursday.

Mrs. Magdalene Jaszdzewski, believed to be Portage county's oldest resident, died at the home of Mike Przelurat, 719 West street, where she resided, at 10 o'clock last Thursday morning. She had been ill for only about two weeks, prior to which she had always led an active life.

Mrs. Jaszdzewski was born in German Poland and at the time of her death was 98 years, 9 months and 23 days old. She lived in Stevens Point for fifty years or more. Her husband, Mike Jaszdzewski, died here about twenty years ago, but there are three surviving children, Mrs. J. Duherstein of this city and Mrs. Leo Cieszewski and Albert Jaszdzewski of Chicago.

The funeral was held from St. Peter's church at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. Rev. S. A. Elbert officiating.

WAS A COINCIDENCE.

During a recent visit to Milwaukee, M. P. Friday of the Nap Trading Co., whose establishment is located on North Second street, just north of the square, dropped into a music store. While there he was particularly impressed with a selection being rendered on a player-piano, and picking up the box that had contained the roll he was surprised and pleased to observe that it was originally played by Miss Winifred Lamb, a former Stevens Point young lady who has won prominence in the musical world. The piece was one of Chopin's, and Mr. Friday was quick to secure a copy for his own store. Miss Lamb is an instructor in the Columbia school of music at Chicago, and in addition has frequently appeared in concert and as the producer of player piano records. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Lamb of this city.

MADE NOVEL TEST

Soo Line Duplicates Ill Fated Train To Establish Facts Concerning Accident.

In order to reach an accurate determination as to the circumstances surrounding the catastrophe at Unity a few weeks ago, when a northbound train crashed into an automobile and caused the death of four prominent Marshfield men, the Soo line carried out a novel test last Friday.

A train—the same in every respect as that which figured in the tragedy, even to the personnel of the crew—was made up at Stevens Point and, with officials and a number of disinterested men aboard, was run as far north as Spencer. At the Unity crossing careful observations were made and pictures taken, particularly to ascertain the view from the road, where an automobile was also used to make the experiment as near a duplicate of what actually took place as possible.

While no official statement has been made, it is reported that the test strengthened two contentions: That there is a clear and almost unobstructed view of the track from the road in question and that the accident was due in a large measure to a lack of proper precaution on the part of those who were passengers in the automobile.
